HISTORY OF THE SENIOR CLASS

ONE OF THE GREATEST experiences we can remember is the eleventh day of September, 1941. That was the day when we first came to high school. We were, without a doubt, the most excited and the greenest bunch of freshmen to have ever entered this school. We seemed to be everywhere at once and yet we were not in the right place. Finally, our kind, considerate teachers came to our rescue and helped us find our way around. After that, with the help of the upperclassmen we were able to go through the year in high spirits until, on the account of the Japs, we had to give up one of our best teachers, Coach Walters, to the Army Air Force. This gave us a more serious outlook and we began to study harder and think about becoming Sophomores.

We returned the next year to start our duties as Sophomores. With most of the green worn off we made a good start by electing as our leaders: Charles Mask, President; Ruth Byrd, Vice-President; Zane Dalton, Secretary, and Betty Jo Flack, Treasurer. We were now feeling like a part of the high school since we had completed one year. Again this year we were called upon by Uncle Sam to give up our friend and principal, Mr. Holland, to the U. S. Navy, but we were very fortunate in getting Mr. Poole to take his place. With his guidance we struggled through this year dreaming of being Juniors.

Now our dream had come true. We were leading the life of Juniors. We really lived up to our name of being jolly and having fun. We took important places in the band, on the school paper, in the clubs, on football and basketball teams and we entered into almost every other activity of our school. We boosted Hoyt Reel and Ralph Toney on the varsity football team. We were honored by having five of our members, Buddy Bost, Mary Catherine Sebastian, Addie Lee Gaddy, Frances England, and Carl Pemberton, Jr., elected to the National Honor Society. We were really excited and proud to accept all the advantages of Juniors. We had lived for our Junior-Senior Day. It was one of the happiest and most wonderful days of our high school career. From the time we were Freshmen we had looked forward to this great occasion. It is one, among many, of our most wonderful memories. Along with it, is our Junior Play, "The Yellow Shadow." We were proud to discover such a large number who possessed real acting ability. With the help of Mrs. Pemberton we were able to present one of the best plays ever given by Juniors. (We think, anyway.) After all these experiences we proved ourselves capable of taking on the title we cherished most, Senior.

At last the top had been reached. We were the dignified Seniors. Well, Seniors anyway! It was hard to be dignified when we were beginning so enthusiastically a new part of our life. As Seniors we really began to feel as if we had grown up. We looked back upon all the outstanding history of our high school and wondered if we would ever be as happy again. We remembered our football and basketball teams. We thought of our Senior Play, our Senior activities, class night, banquet, and then we peeped into the future when we would graduate. We thought of our classmates, our teachers, and friends. This year we had been brought closer to war and its meaning because four of our classmates, Roan Norman, Jack Laughridge, J. D. Holt, and Bill Roland had left us for the Armed Forces.

It was with a sad heart that we said adieu to Marion High, but we knew that we would cherish the wonderful memories of our school days, and Marion High would always have a special place in our hearts.

* Killed in action.

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

HAVING ALWAYS had a yen for strange and mysterious adventures I slipped one night into a place bearing the important title of "Madame Zolga's Seances — See the Past and Future." When the strangely-dressed woman turned her eyes upon me and asked my desire, I mumbled the words, "I want to see the future." I was curious to see what was going to happen to all my classmates of '45.

First, we visited the Town of Marion. We went into the World News office and saw Carl Pemberton, the Editor. The paper has improved greatly under Carl's management, both in size and features. Among his staff are Doris Davis, Society Editor; Mildred Styles, Head of Household Hints; and Mabel Copeland, the beloved Aunt Nina, writer of Aunt Nina's Lovelorn Column.

Next, we went to Bost's Jewelers, owned by Buddy Bost. He was busy. Paul Jones, a successful dentist, was buying a diamond bracelet for his wife.

Farther up the street I saw a cafe which had the following sign: "Jeanette Brown, Owner and Manager." Inside was the present Marion High School Principal, Billy Hawkins.

Knowing how ambitious our Class of '45 always was, I was not surprised to find the next scene laid in Washington. We saw Senators Junior Robinson, Eston Ross, and Louis Wall. Louis is going to run for our next Vice-President.

Also in Washington are Ruth Lentz, Ruby Owensby, and Ruth Byrd working as stenographers. Geneva Rumfelt is operating an exclusive beauty shop. It seems to be the gathering place for all the society ladies in Washington.

Naturally, with all the beauties in our class, I thought some of them would be in the movies, and as I thought of it there we were in Hollywood. On the 20th Century Lot we saw Pete Gibbs and John Mack Laughridge, the Charles Boyer and Van Johnson of our day. They were discussing Mozelle Atkins, the most beautiful actress in Hollywood. Mozelle has just won the famed "Oscar" for the best performance of the year.

There in one of the biggest cafes was its owner Elizabeth Lentz. Two of her regular customers are Wayne Jamison and Gorman Ledbetter, famous comedians. Jack Laughridge and his "Dirty Dozen" are playing a long engagement at the Mocambo.

Many of our class I found were teachers. Billy Walker is an English professor in the University of Florida. Faye Ayers and Ralph Toney are athletic directors in the University of Alabama. Some of the class preferring high school teaching are Addie Lee Gaddy, History; Margie Lee Frady, English, and Bobbie Martin, Third Grade. Jeannette Rader is the band director in the Seattle, Wash., High School. She is doing graduate work in oboe.

Next, Madame Zolga took me to New York City. We were just in time to see a big ship dock. The first person I saw was Wilma Fowler. Wilma is now one of America's most notable authors. She is just returning from Europe where she had been collecting material for her latest book, "Europe Since V-Day." Also on the ship was Betty Jo Brooks who had been studying Paris fashions. Betty Jo is a fashion designer for Vogue magazine. These two stopped to speak to the ship's captain, who turned out to be Maurice Melton.

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

While at the docks we saw a Navy ship come in. Aboard it was Lieut.-Com. Joe David Holt, Jr., who did not get enough of the Navy during the war. J. D. is not the only one who did not get enough military service. Bill McIver is a Major in the Infantry and Bobby Gladden is still flying for the Air Corps.

Imogene Elliott and Inez Lawing, still as inseparable as ever, are singing on the radio. Hayward McGee is a news commentator.

Some of the class who always had a talent for art are finding that it isn't bad at all as a profession. Among those are Hugh Gladden, Frances Miller, and Mary Ann Elliott.

Helen Wilkerson is now managing her own five-and-ten-cent store in Spartanburg, South Carolina. Carl is the Mayor of Spartanburg.

Several of our boys playing professional football are: Kenneth Toney, Thurston Foxx, and Ernest O'Dear. Others are playing professional baseball. They are Harold Buchanan, James Lee Jones, Bill Roland, and Calvin Webb.

Charles Mask and Ray Condrey now own a chain of grocery stores. They are very successful. Phillip Odom is a conductor for the C. C. & O. Railroad. Five of the girls in our class are models: Betty Jo Flack, Edna Parker, Colleen Styles, Virginia Penland, and Wilma Watkins.

Madame Zolga seemed to be such a capable woman that I decided to ask her a question she couldn't answer—just to see if I could stump her. I asked if any of my classmates were in Europe, and if so, what they were doing. To my surprise she told me. Margaret Ledbetter, now a famous scientist, is touring Europe giving lectures on "The Discovery of the Unknown Element." With her is Theta Payne, the Florence Nightingale of our day.

Other nurses from our class are Frances England, Dorothy Dean Burgin, Irene Hunter, and Maxine Jarrett. Raymond Hawkins is the head doctor at Johns Hopkins, and his head nurse is Mary Nichols. Barry Buchanan is a noted surgeon.

We had a number of musically inclined people. Elizabeth Ann Stepp is now the soprano soloist with the Metropolitan Opera Company. Thurlene Murray, who has accomplished much with her piano, is preparing to tour North and South America.

Florence Buckner, Louise Hollifield, and Hattie McNeely are fashion designers in New York City. Bernice Bowman, Kathleen Head, and Bernice England have opened up a very swanky dress shop. Evelyn Fleming and Kathryn Evans are still playing basketball. They are working as athletic directors for various girls' camps. Ann Tainter owns a chain of successful drug stores, and James Ledbetter is the proud owner of "Shorty's Soda Shoppe."

. . . Bong, Bong, Twelve bells, I had no idea it was so late. I got up, paid Madame Zolga, and stumbled out of her presence, in a daze of facts which I desired to impart to my classmates, but which I knew they'd never believe.

MARY CATHERINE SEBASTIAN,
Class Prophet.
